Marie V. Lim Represents Novack and Macey LLP at E-Discovery Colloquium

AUGUST 5TH, 2010

Novack and Macey's E-Discovery Attorney, Marie V. Lim, participated in the Executive Counsel Institute's colloquium on electronic discovery on August 2 and 3 at the Park Hyatt Chicago. The program entitled "E-Discovery for the Corporate Market" was attended by a group of 50 individuals from corporate legal departments, law firms and electronic discovery service providers.

Lead moderators were Browning E. Marean III, partner at DLA Piper's San Diego office, and George Socha, president of Socha Consulting LLC in St. Paul, Minnesota. Marean is an internationally-known teacher, author and lecturer on electronic discovery. Socha is co-founder of the Electronic Discovery Reference Model (EDRM) which creates guidelines and standards in the field of electronic discovery.

The colloquium was a unique event where attendees were encouraged to participate in round-table discussions regarding various topics such as creating a routine and repeatable e-discovery business process, dealing with the challenges of litigation holds, effective cost and risk containment steps and the importance of project and process management skills. Moderators and attendees worked together to develop practical solutions to e-discovery challenges facing organizations today.
